SFCA RETREAT!

This retreat will offer SFCA participants a time to reflect on the impact of structural racism and other forms of oppression. Discussion, healing-centered activities, and creating a vision for community care in this especially intense season of transition will be offered through an intersectional lens.

Friday, October 2nd, 2020
10:00am – 1:00pm

Register in advance for this meeting:

Details will be provided later this week. After registering, you will receive a confirmation email containing information about joining the meeting.

Retreat Facilitator Information:

Tiombe Wallace, MS, MFT, is a licensed Marriage and Family Therapist with over 23 years of experience as a Black intersectional feminist therapist, educator, and activist. She is the owner of a private psychotherapy practice, training and consulting business. She provides services and training for rape crisis and domestic violence advocates, social workers, therapists, first responders, and campuses across the nation. Her specializations include intersectional feminist therapy, culturally responsive trauma-informed care, sexual and intimate partner violence, and healing historical trauma in communities experiencing marginalization and oppression.
